Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-fourth session from 4 to 15 November 2019. The review of Egypt was held at the 15th meeting, on 13 November 2019. The delegation of Egypt was headed by the Minister of Parliamentary Affairs, H.E. Chancellor Omar El-Khattab Marawan. At its 18th meeting, held on 15 November 2019, the Working Group adopted the report on Egypt.

2. On 15 January 2019, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Egypt: Fiji, Senegal and United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Egypt:

These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. Egypt commended the UPR process, as one that is based on interactive constructive dialogue, hence allowing for exchanging experiences and ideas to promote the respect of human rights internationally. It explained that the report detailed national efforts since the second cycle to implement the stipulations of the 2014 Constitution, international obligations, and the recommendations Egypt had accepted, through a gradation of priorities approach, taking into account existing capacities and available resources. It highlighted that while Article 151 of the Constitution stipulates that all international treaties have the force of law upon ratification, Article 93 specifically grants this power to international human rights treaties ratified.

6. Egypt underscored that exercising human rights is not absolute according to UDHR and IHL, but may be regulated as provided for by law, so that enjoying a right by one would not come at the expense of another, lest conflicts arise between right-holders. Thus, the national policy promotes all civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights, while maintaining a balance between these rights, respecting diversity and providing equal opportunity to all citizens. The National Council for Human Rights (NCHR), being the national human rights institution, as well as the National Council for Women (NCW), the National Council for Childhood and Motherhood (NCCM), the National Council for Persons with Disabilities (NCPD) and NGOs are all partners in this respect.

7. The head of delegation warned of twisting facts for political or personal interests, citing as examples the propagation of the term “Arrest of Demonstrators” alluding to the arrest of those who violate the law by failing to notify the authorities in advance, and “Collective Trials” to describe crimes where there are several perpetrators. He synopsized the most important steps taken to implement previous recommendations in the following:

8. On (a) civil and political rights:
Fulfilling the political roadmap drawn by the 30th June 2013 Revolution, through adopting a new Constitution and holding presidential elections in 2014, and electing Parliament members in 2015:

Holding the second presidential elections in 2018 and a referendum on constitutional amendments in 2019 under the supervision of the National Elections Committee, an independent authority composed of members of the judiciary;

Amending the Law on Public Meetings, Processions and Peaceful Demonstrations in 2017 to confirm the right to demonstrate by a mere notification, granting the judiciary exclusive rights to cancel, postpone or change the course of demonstrations, an important amendment that is sometimes intentionally overlooked;

Amending the Law on NGOs in 2019, following a series of communal consultations;

Enacting a new Labour Unions Law, granting workers freedom of association and prohibiting the dissolution of unions, except by a court ruling, and amending the Law in 2019 upon ILO proposals;

Enacting a law to regulate the construction and restoration of churches in 2016, and accordingly legalizing the status of 1235 churches and service facilities to-date.

9. On (b) Economic Social and Cultural Rights:
Economic and fiscal reforms from 2014 to 2019 lead to increasing the annual per capita income from 28,000 to 53,721 EGP and dropping the unemployment rate from 12.8% to 7.5%;

Pensions of civil servants in both public and private sectors rose by 41%, and the Solidarity and Dignity Programme provided a social security network for poor families, old and disabled persons, and orphans, benefitting about 10 million people;

Efforts are underway to provide adequate housing, safe and clean drinking water, sanitation and decent living for all;

Enacting the Law on Comprehensive Health Insurance in 2017, aiming at gradually providing comprehensive health insurance to cover all citizens without distinction, in tandem with efforts to improve healthcare services, including through initiatives to detect and treat Hepatitis C and non-communicable diseases, in addition to improving healthcare for women, students and incarcerated persons.

10. To fulfill international obligations, a law was enacted in 2016 criminalizing all forms of smuggling migrants and acknowledging their right to voluntary repatriation. Egypt hosts over 250,000 refugees and asylum seekers, in addition to about 5 millions residents, most of whom fled conflicts in neighboring States and do not wish to apply for refugee or asylum status. They are not kept in isolated camps and enjoy all the basic services as Egyptians.

11. Egypt reminded that it had issued a midterm report in 2018, and announced the submission of its periodic reports to the Human Rights Committee, CAT, CEDAW, CRC and CRPD.
B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

12. During the interactive dialogue, 133 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

13. Montenegro, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Serbia, Seychelles, Singapore, Slovenia, Somalia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, State of Palestine, Sudan, Sweden, Switzerland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Timor-Leste, Togo, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Uruguay, Uzbekistan, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of), Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belarus, Belgium, Bhutan, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Canada, Central African Republic, Chad, Chile, China, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Haiti, Holy See, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Iraq, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Kyrgyzstan, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Republic of Moldova, Honduras, Qatar, Niger made recommendations. Mali and Mauritania made a statement. The complete version of the statements can be found in the webcast archived on the United Nations website.1

14. In response to questions raised during the interactive dialogue, Egypt shared its experience in establishing national mechanisms mandated to follow through with the recommendations, which included all relevant government agencies, NCW, NCCM NCPD and NGOs. The Committee laid down policies for implementation, monitoring and follow-up. A Supreme Standing Committee is being created to replace previous mechanisms and streamline national efforts. Its first task is to devise a national human rights strategy, and is mandated to prepare reports to treaty-bodies and UPR, interact with international human rights mechanisms, deal with communications, provide capacity-building programmes, particularly for the law enforcement agencies, and mainstreaming human rights in school curricula. The aim is to spread the human rights culture.

15. Egypt reiterated its commitment to continuing positive cooperation with HRC mechanisms. It had received the Special Rapporteur on Adequate Housing, hosted the 64th Session of ACHPR, and will host the 34th Session of ACRWC later in November. Invitations were extended to 6 other mandate-holders, and work is underway to fix the dates for their visits, considering their busy schedules and OHCHR budget limitations on the number of visits allowed per year. Given the preparations needed, Egypt will consider extending other invitations once these visits take place.

16. Egypt enumerated the steps taken to implement the substantive recommendations of the Special Rapporteur on Adequate Housing, in line with the Constitution and SDGs 5-A and 11. The National Housing Strategy is being devised in consultation with UN-Habitat, the private sector and NGOs. Egypt affirmed that there is no discrimination in the housing sector. Regulations for allocating housing units, for example, do not place any restrictions based on sex or sexual behaviour, and no such information is required from applicants.

17. Egypt affirmed that any act of intimidation or reprisal against those who cooperate with HRC and its mechanisms is wholly unacceptable, and is thus thoroughly investigated and the perpetrators are held accountable, once sufficient information is provided and verified. Egypt expressed keenness on ensuring that people can freely interact with HRC mandate-holders.

18. The Cyber Crimes Law aims at striking balance between exercising freedom of expression and combating ITC-related crimes. It, therefore, ordains a judicial verdict to block websites when there is evidence of committing a crime prescribed for by law, in line with Article 19 of ICCPR.

19. Egypt referenced articles of the Constitutions that consider all forms of torture as imprescriptible crimes, dismiss all confessions derived thereby, and criminalize torture, intimidation and physical or psychological harm. In line with these stipulations and Egypt’s obligations under CAT, Articles 126, 127, 129, 280, 281 and 282 of the Penal Code criminalize all forms of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, and enforce several penalties proportionate to the gravity of such acts. This was repeatedly asserted by the Court of Cassation rulings, which established that statements obtained through prolonged interrogations represent material or moral harm, and therefore are inadmissible. All individual cases of torture or ill-treatment are thoroughly investigated by the Public Prosecution, which is currently creating a database on such incidents. The three-tier Grievance Mechanism aims at fighting impunity, namely through criminal prosecution, disciplinary accountability and reparation. The report contained data on incidents investigated and punished.

20. Egypt asserted that any forms of legally unjustified deprivation of liberty are prohibited in all circumstances, even under Emergency law. The Public Prosecution, being an independent judicial body, investigates claims of enforced disappearance. No location is immune to the Public Prosecution inspection. Not all absence claims turned out to be enforced disappearances. Many actually involved joining terrorist groups, illegal migration, or social conditions, such as avoiding blood feuds. The freedom of movement is enshrined in the Constitution, and it is impossible to keep track of the whereabouts of all citizens. The Government’s cooperation was commended by the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances before HRC last September.

21. All prisons and detention facilities fall under judicial supervision, according to Egyptian legislation. The Public Prosecution inspects all these places regularly, by challenge or upon complaints. It makes remarks regarding living and health conditions and treatment, and monitors their implementation. It carried out 147 visits to prisons and detention facilities. As the Law on NCHR was amended to ensure its independence, it was also granted the right to visit, and to inform the Public Prosecution of its findings. Additionally, the Parliamentary Human Rights Committee, NCW and NCCM pay regular visits. Each prisoner is allowed 2 hours in open air, undergo regular medical check-up, and receive allocated rations, in addition to obtaining medications and food from relatives. Every prison has a fully equipped clinic and every region has a central hospital. Should treatment become unattainable onsite, transfer was authorized to public hospitals. Release for medical reasons was granted if incarceration is deemed detrimental to the individual’s health condition.

22. Pre-trial detention is only imposed by the Public Prosecution on over-15 year-olds in criminal offences, or when a felony is punishable by imprisonment of a year or more, but should not exceed the third of prescribed penalty term. Otherwise, a person may not be detained except by a court order. Alternatives to pre-trial detention are employed by the Public Prosecution.

23. Fair trial guarantees are stipulated in Articles 55, 95, 96, 97, 186, 187, 188 and 189 of the Constitution, and are reflected in laws, in accordance with international standards.
Solitary confinement is a disciplinary punishment, and should not exceed 15 days, while boarding in en-suite single cells is a procedure to accommodate the individuals’ health conditions. In both cases, individuals are allowed to see their lawyers and all their rights are protected.

24. Arbitrary deprivation of the right to life is criminalized. The death penalty is only imposed on the most serious crimes, as per Article 6 of ICCPR. Egypt applies all the guarantees indicated in previous reports, in accordance with international standards. It is not imposed on under 18. Verdicts in absentia are repealed once the convicted is arrested, and a re-trial is obligatory.

25. The enjoyment of all human rights is guaranteed by the Constitution and law, and due process is not suspended under the Counter-Terrorism Law. Declaring the state of emergency is constitutionally restricted to ensure its justification, in line with Article 4 of ICCPR, and its renewal requires a two-thirds Parliament majority. Despite rising terrorist attacks since 2013, the general state of emergency was only declared in 2017 after attacks heightened on churches, killing and injuring over 200 citizens.

26. Laws 178, 179 and 180 of 2018 were enacted to ensure the independence and professionalism of the media and the Media Workers Syndicate, prohibiting their subjugation to any punishment in fulfilling their roles. These laws eliminate liberty deprivation penalties, except in cases of incitement to violence, discrimination or defamation of individuals. Accordingly, no censorship on the media is permissible, except at times of war or general mobilization, albeit limited, but no suspension or closure is admissible.

27. Egypt explained that it considers its stance vis-à-vis the Rome Statute as part of regular reviews of the status of ratification of international treaties.

28. Egypt shared its experience in preventing trafficking in persons, including for domestic work and organ removal. Training programmes were expanded in close coordination with NGOs, channels for reporting the crime were improved, a number of social protection programs were launched to support the most impoverished families, hence helping to protect them from falling victims, and the National Referral Mechanism to support victims was upgraded to ensure the provision of necessary legal, physical and psychological assistance to victims, and to facilitate their admission in shelters. Dedicated judicial circuits were created, as well as a specialized department in the Ministry of Interior and units in all governorates to combat smuggling of migration and human trafficking, so that the effective prosecution of perpetrators is ensured. The Ministry of Manpower monitors the working conditions of children over 15, women, persons with disabilities and foreigners to protect them from exploitation. Cooperation with other African States is enhanced, and 12 bilateral agreements were signed to regulate the status of Egyptian domestic workers abroad and ensure that they do not become victims of human trafficking. In addition, a new law was drafted on the employment of domestic workers, and is currently under the Parliament’s consideration.

29. Fighting corruption, promoting tolerance and peaceful coexistence, empowering women, the youth, the elderly and persons with disabilities, and safeguarding the rights of the child were highlighted as national priorities. The Government vowed to safeguard human rights, ensuring equal rights and opportunities to all citizens, without discrimination, endeavor to fulfill its people’s aspirations, and protect their safety and human dignity, despite economic challenges, terrorist threats and regional turmoil.

30. Egypt concluded by extending their appreciation to the President of the Human Rights Council and the Member States delegations for taking part in its review by raising questions and proposing recommendations. Egypt expressed its deep conviction in the role of the UPR to improve the human rights situation worldwide.
