Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-third session from 6 to 17 May 2019. The review of Ethiopia was held at the 13th meeting, on 14 May 2019. The delegation of Ethiopia was headed by the Deputy Attorney General of Ethiopia, Gedion Timothewos Hassebon. At its 17th meeting, held on 16 May 2019, the Working Group adopted the report on Ethiopia.
2. On 15 January 2019, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Ethiopia: Angola, Nepal and Hungary.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Ethiopia:
  - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/33/ETH/1);
  - (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/33/ETH/2);
  - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/33/ETH/3).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Germany, Portugal on behalf of the Group of Friends on national implementation, reporting and follow-up, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America was transmitted to Ethiopia through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation stated that the universal periodic review offered a great opportunity to Ethiopia, particularly as the country was undergoing a process of profound political reform aimed at revitalizing the enjoyment of human rights.
6. The national report had been prepared in consultation with all relevant government agencies. In addition, consultative forums had been held with, inter alia, the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission, civil society organizations and academics. The general public had also been consulted.
7. Following the previous review of Ethiopia, a national monitoring, implementation, reporting and follow-up mechanism had been established, and served as a hub of the Government's efforts to coordinate the implementation of treaty obligations and supported recommendations from the previous review. Those recommendations had been incorporated into the second national human rights action plan. A national coordinating committee composed of nine relevant ministries and the head of the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission had been established and entrusted with supervising the implementation of the plan.
8. The period under review had seen challenging and turbulent times for Ethiopia. The country experienced protests and demonstrations, and two states of emergency had been declared. These events triggered a process of political reform and transformation that was still unfolding.
9. Significant political, administrative and legislative measures had been taken, such as the granting of pardons and amnesties for thousands of citizens, especially those charged and convicted under the Proclamation on Anti-Terrorism, including journalists, bloggers, dissidents and leaders of opposition political groups. All opposition political groups that had been designated as terrorist organizations and banned under the Proclamation on Anti-Terrorism had had their terrorist designation lifted and had been welcomed back to the country. Exiled journalists, writers, politicians and media and political organizations had returned to the country and were now operating freely. The ban, suppression and blockade of blogs, websites and satellite television stations had been lifted. Secret places of detention and sites for gross human rights violations run by the security and law enforcement agencies had been identified, publicly disclosed and shut down.

10. Officials and members of security and law enforcement agencies had been charged for alleged human rights violations. A comprehensive institutional reform programme was also under way, focusing on the security sector and democratic institutions. The proclamations establishing the National Defense Force, the National Electoral Board and the Institution of the Ombudsman had been revised, and those establishing the National Intelligence and Security Service and the Federal Prison Administration were under review. A change in the organizational setup and legal framework of key democratic institutions, security agencies and the judiciary was being implemented.

11. The Proclamation on Charities and Societies had been repealed and replaced with the new Proclamation on Civil Society, providing robust protection for freedom of association while putting in place a reasonable regulatory and accountability mechanism. In addition, the Proclamation on Anti-terrorism and the legal regime governing the press were at an advanced stage of revision. The new electoral legislation was expected to be adopted in the near future.

12. Pent-up grievances and tensions, at times deliberately stirred by malignant forces, had posed a serious challenge to reform efforts by causing conflict, instability and displacement in different parts of the country. Cognizant of the danger, the Government has taken measures to uphold the rule of law, ensure accountability and foster peace. An administrative boundaries and identities commission had been established to inquire into, inter alia, the underlying causes of the frequent communal clashes and conflicts. A national reconciliation commission had also been established with a mandate to promote intercommunal understanding, reconciliation and harmony.

13. The overarching vision of Ethiopia was to become a middle-income country by 2025. A set of development strategies and policies had delivered commendable results. The Government had worked in close collaboration with international development partners to attain the goals of the Growth and Transformation Plan. The Productive Safety Net Programme supported a sizable number of chronically food-insecure people. An enabling policy environment had been created to attain the Sustainable Development Goals.

14. Ethiopia had achieved gender parity at the cabinet level, with 50 per cent of ministerial posts held by women.

15. Ethiopia had, either fully or partially, implemented almost all of the recommendations supported, and many of the recommendations noted, at its previous review.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

16. During the interactive dialogue, 132 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

43. Singapore noted the significant efforts made to ensure equitable access to education.
44. Slovakia appreciated the progress made in human rights, but was concerned about child sexual abuse.
45. Slovenia noted some improvements in human rights, but was concerned about ethnic conflicts.
46. Somalia noted the human rights reforms and the positive action taken to achieve gender balance.
47. South Africa noted the political reforms and cooperation with United Nations human rights mechanisms.

48. Spain congratulated Ethiopia on the various measures adopted since its previous review.
49. Sri Lanka appreciated the adoption of the national human rights action plan.
50. The State of Palestine noted the National Reproductive Health Strategy.
51. The Sudan noted the strengthening of human rights protection and cooperation with international mechanisms.
52. Sweden was encouraged by enhanced regional peace, development and domestic democratic reforms.
53. Switzerland welcomed the reforms and the closure of detention centres where torture had been used.
54. The Syrian Arab Republic welcomed the establishment of the national mechanism for reporting and follow-up.
55. Tajikistan noted the human rights-centred reforms and the widening of democratic space.
56. Thailand welcomed the political, economic and sociocultural reforms.
57. Togo thanked Ethiopia for the presentation of its report.
58. Tunisia noted the progress made in strengthening human rights and democracy, and the adoption of legislation.
59. Turkey encouraged Ethiopia to meet the needs of internally displaced persons.
60. Uganda welcomed the climate change initiatives and the measures taken to protect the rights of refugees.
61. Ukraine noted some human rights progress, including the adoption of legislative acts.
62. The United Arab Emirates noted the improvements made in the protection of economic, social and cultural rights.
63. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was concerned about the large numbers of displaced persons.
64. The United States of America noted the decriminalization of the political opposition and that peaceful assemblies were now allowed.
65. Uruguay noted the implementation of a national human rights action plan for 2016–2020.
66. Viet Nam noted the efforts made to protect economic, social and cultural rights.

72. Angola noted the efforts made to consolidate peace and to ensure economic growth.
73. Argentina noted the adoption of a new law on refugees.
74. Armenia noted the establishment of the national mechanism for reporting and follow-up, and the strengthened role of women in society.
75. Australia commended the steps taken to widen political space and to improve gender equality.

76. The delegation of Ethiopia stated that the requests to visit the country made by the Special Rapporteur on the freedom of peaceful assembly and of association, the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of expression and opinion, the Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights, the Special Rapporteur on the right to education and the Special Rapporteur on the elimination of discrimination against persons affected by leprosy and their family members had been recently accepted. A memorandum of understanding has been signed with the International Committee of the Red Cross, allowing it to have access to all prison facilities.

77. The Government's primary focus would be to ensure that the 2020 national elections were free, fair and credible. A new proclamation on the establishment of the National Electoral Board had been adopted, a new chairperson appointed, and the capacity of the Board enhanced. Furthermore, the electoral legislation was being amended. The Proclamation on Freedom of the Mass Media and Access to Information No. 590/2008 was also in the process of being amended. In March 2019, 107 political parties, including the ruling party, signed a code of conduct that would guide their activities.

78. Ethiopia hosted about a million refugees from some 26 countries. The comprehensive refugee response framework had been rolled out. In addition, a new progressive proclamation on refugees had been adopted and 10-year national comprehensive refugee response strategy was being finalized. Efforts were being made to include refugees in the national and local development systems and plans. A special programme focused on the protection needs of refugee women, girls and children.

79. Certain factors, such as drought and conflict among different ethnic groups, had resulted in a large number of internally displaced people. The reconciliation and peace conferences held in different localities, as well as the reintegration and rehabilitation initiatives, had resulted in about 800,000 displaced people voluntarily returning to their neighbourhoods. Humanitarian assistance was being provided in areas of displacement and of return. Other initiatives included the establishment of a national reconciliation commission and an administrative boundaries and identity issues commission.

80. Ethiopia had enacted Proclamation No. 909 of 2015 to domesticate the Protocol against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, and the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime. A national committee and task forces at the regional and federal levels respectively had been established to follow up on the implementation of relevant legislation. Concerted efforts were being made to ensure the safe return of irregular migrants detained abroad.

81. Austria noted the release of political prisoners, but was concerned about ethnic tensions.

82. Azerbaijan noted the progress made in the implementation of recommendations made at the previous review.

83. Bahrain noted the establishment of the national mechanism for reporting and follow-up.

84. Barbados noted the implementation of measures taken to strengthen social cohesion.

85. Belarus noted the effort made to combat corruption and to reduce poverty.

86. Belgium noted the planned reforms to improve the human rights situation.

87. Benin noted the measures taken to improve intercultural and interreligious dialogue.

88. Bhutan noted the progress made in implementing recommendations made at the previous review.

89. The Plurinational State of Bolivia noted the reforms relating to the protection of human rights.

108. The Democratic Republic of the Congo commended the law on trafficking in persons and the smuggling of migrants.
109. Denmark stated that prerequisites for ensuring progress included protecting vulnerable groups affected by conflict.
110. Djibouti welcomed the political reforms that had strengthened democracy and the rule of law.
111. Dominican Republic made recommendations.
112. Ecuador noted the adoption of the second national human rights action plan.
113. Egypt commended Ethiopia for its efforts to strengthen stability in the region.
114. Eritrea expressed its satisfaction at the unfolding political and legislative reforms introduced by the new administration.
115. Estonia noted the Government’s dialogue with civil society and the release of political prisoners.
116. Fiji noted the efforts made to prevent internal displacement through early warning mechanisms.
117. Finland noted the widening of space for political and civil rights.

118. France was concerned about inter-ethnic violence.
119. Gabon welcomed measures for persons with disabilities, despite the challenges.
120. Georgia welcomed the decision to establish the national mechanism for reporting and follow-up.
121. Germany commended Ethiopia for releasing political prisoners and for the reforms recently initiated.
122. Ghana commended Ethiopia for committing to upholding human rights and good governance.
123. Greece welcomed the increased representation of women in political life.
124. Guyana commended Ethiopia for its efforts to address poverty and to reach vulnerable sectors of society.
125. Haiti noted the efforts made to promote human rights and to improve the living conditions of its people.
126. The Holy See noted the efforts made in the areas of education, health and working conditions.
127. Honduras commended Ethiopia for its efforts to reduce poverty through the second Growth and Transformation Plan.
128. Hungary noted that Ethiopia was a party to seven core international human rights treaties.
129. Iceland welcomed the steps taken to advance gender equality and women's rights.
130. India noted the capacity-building measures that had been taken.
131. Indonesia welcomed the second Growth and Transformation Plan.
132. The Islamic Republic of Iran noted the cooperation with the Ethiopian Human Rights Commission.
133. Iraq welcomed the efforts made to protect human rights and to implement the recommendations made at the previous review.
134. Ireland urged Ethiopia to ensure prompt, impartial and thorough investigations into human rights violations.
135. Israel commended the State's adoption of national strategies and policies, including on gender equality and girls' education.
136. Italy appreciated the State's commitment to end female genital mutilation and child marriage by 2025.
137. Japan welcomed the progress made on the empowerment of women, the protection of refugees, and civil and political rights.
138. Jordan welcomed the adoption of the 2016–2020 human rights plan and other plans and programmes.
139. Kazakhstan welcomed the reforms undertaken, including on strengthening the protection of human rights and widening democratic space.
140. Kenya noted the establishment of a national mechanism for reporting and follow-up and the government reform agenda on human rights.
141. Kuwait noted the implementation of the national human rights action plan.
142. Kyrgyzstan welcomed the achievements in addressing gender equality.
143. The Lao People's Democratic Republic commended Ethiopia for the implementation of the national social protection policy.
144. Latvia noted the acceptance of several requests made by special procedures to visit the country.

145. Lesotho noted the progress made in safeguarding the sexual and reproductive rights of women.
146. Libya welcomed the measures taken to strengthen national human rights institutions.
147. Lithuania noted the release of political prisoners, human rights defenders and journalists.
148. Luxembourg welcomed the considerable effort made in receiving refugees from Eritrea.
149. Madagascar noted that the family law provided for women's enjoyment of equal rights.
150. Portugal acknowledged the significant measures taken to improve the human rights situation.
151. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela noted that education was given priority attention.
152. Qatar welcomed the Growth and Transformation Plan.
153. New Zealand recognized the progress made in opening civil and political space.
154. The delegation of Ethiopia stated that, over the past 20 years, the country had successfully implemented its strategy to expand and rehabilitate primary health-care facilities, which had led to improvements in maternal and child health and a steady decline in the under-5 mortality rate. However, much remained to be done to achieve universal health coverage.
155. Women's concerns had been effectively mainstreamed into national programmes and development plans, as shown by the inclusion of women's participation and benefit as a pillar in the second five-year Growth and Transformation Plan. In addition, a gender mainstreaming manual and a gender-responsive budgeting manual were developed.
156. All forms of discrimination, including gender discrimination, were prohibited by law. Policy and institutional measures, such as the Women's Development and Change Strategy, had been introduced to protect women's rights. The Strategic Plan for an Integrated and Multi-sector Response to Violence against Women and Children was being implemented, and various institutional bodies, such as child and women protection units in the police and justice bureaus had been established. The Proclamation on Civil Servants of 2017 explicitly prohibited sexual harassment in the workplace.
157. The national strategy on harmful traditional practices focused on eliminating child marriage, female genital mutilation, and abduction. The implementation of the Proclamation on Vital Events Registration, which called for the registration of all births, marriages, divorces and deaths was expected to aid efforts to eliminate child marriage. At the first Global Girls' Summit, held in London in 2014, the Government committed to eliminate child marriage and female genital mutilation by 2025, and a road map was prepared for implementation.
158. Awareness-raising initiatives had been implemented to eliminate prevalent stereotypes of and stigma against persons with disabilities, and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities had been translated into five local languages and distributed to the public. A landmark ruling by the House of Federation had upheld the right of visually impaired persons to serve as judges in law courts. Nonetheless, accessibility of social services to persons with disabilities and effective mainstreaming of the rights of persons with disabilities remained a major challenge.
159. A comprehensive national child policy based on the provisions of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child were being implemented.
160. National initiatives, such as the Urban and Rural Food Security Strategy, the National Social Protection Policy, the Urban Development Policy, the Productive Safety Net Programme, the Job Creation Strategy and the Household Asset Building Programme had contributed to food security and addressing malnutrition. Agricultural productivity had risen through the assistance given to farmers. Frequently occurring droughts had, however, created challenges. Global efforts to combat the effects of climate change should be further strengthened, and support to fulfil national commitments was critical to achieving food security. Global partnership was a key factor in the realization of the Sustainable Development Goals.

161. The Government's determination to provide free and accessible education had led to the expansion of educational facilities at all levels. A school feeding programme had been introduced in areas affected by drought and for students from impoverished families.

162. In conclusion, the delegation of Ethiopia was encouraged by the positive and constructive recommendations received, which would serve as input in the ongoing reform process.
