Geneva, 21 January-1 February 2019

Draft report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review*

Slovakia

* The annex is being circulated without formal editing, in the language of submission only.
Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-second session from 21 January to 1 February 2019. The review of Slovakia was held at the 11th meeting, on 28 January 2019. The delegation of Slovakia was headed by the State Secretary of the Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, Mr. František Ružička. At its 17th meeting, held on 31 January 2019, the Working Group adopted the report on Slovakia.

2. On 15 January 2019, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Slovakia: Afghanistan, Cameroon and Chile.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Slovakia:

   (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/SVK/1);

   (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/SVK/2);

   (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/SVK/3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belarus, Belgium, Germany, Portugal on behalf of the Group of Friends on national implementation, reporting and follow up, Sweden, Slovenia, the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Slovakia through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The head of the delegation stated that Slovakia remained committed to the universal periodic review mechanism and the implementation of the recommendations put forward during its review. The Government had been taking measures to ensure full implementation of all human rights obligations nationwide. Civil society, national human rights institutions and other partners had played an indispensable role in the efforts of the Government to advance further the protection of human rights and to implement successfully the recommendations from the universal periodic review.

8. The delegation informed the Human Rights Council about the developments related to the follow up of the previous review. After signing the Optional Protocol to the Convention
9. The authorities expected to have an amendment to the Act on Slovak National Centre for Human Rights adopted in the nearest future. The amendment included changes to improve the selection process of the Director of the Centre and strengthen the mandate and the independence of the Centre so it meets the Paris Principles.

10. The new Act on victims of crime, which entered into force in 2018, had included the provision on assistance to victims, including psychological support and legal assistance and measures to avoid re-victimization during the criminal proceedings. The Act gave a special attention to child-victims by including stronger mechanism to protect the rights and interests of the child during the interrogation of child-victims or child witnesses.

11. The Government had started the provision of free meals in kindergartens and primary schools in 2019, which could have a positive impact on attendance of children from families in disadvantage situation. The Government had taken measures to make the preschool education mandatory with an aim to improve the school attendance of Roma children.

12. In 2018, the Government had started implementing a plan to employ health education assistants for over 300 villages during two-year period in order to improve access to health services of the Roma in less developed parts of the country. Those assistants were all Roma women who had received continuous education in healthcare assistance and reproductive health.

13. The existing legislation allowed the application of the conscientious objection by healthcare professionals regarding the protection of life of an unborn. The National Programme for Care of Children and Youth included reproductive health and rights to ensure quality care for pregnant women and newborns and reduce maternal mortality and morbidity rates.

14. In the area of gender equality, the Government had taken measures to ensure necessary conditions for reconciling family life and work and reducing the gender pay gap. The number of fathers taking paid paternity leave for seven months had increased, reaching 17 percent of fathers in 2018. Women Ministers constituted a third of the Government.

15. The delegations highlighted also measures taken to protect women and children from violence. The Ministry of Labour, Social Affairs and Family run a free hot line for women and provided services for victims of domestic violence, including by supporting various projects implemented by nongovernmental organisations. The use of such services by women and the rate of reporting and prosecution of domestic violence cases had increased. The Government had carried out public awareness campaigns to prevent violence against children and reforms to improve social protection system.

16. The system of support for persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities was in place to preserve and protect identity and cultures of minorities. The Act on the Fund for the Promotion of the Culture of Persons belonging to National Minorities, which came into effect in 2017, aimed to transform the previous state system with a new one and provide effective support to cultural and arts initiatives of all persons belonging to national minorities.

17. The Government approved a national program on education and its implementation plan in 2018 to improve lifelong education and integration and inclusion of children of the Roma and from socially disadvantages families and ensure that education system was interlinked with the needs of national economy and labor market.
18. Housing remained a challenge, not only for the Roma but also for low-income households. The State Housing Policy Concept 2020 set an objective to make housing affordable.

19. The authorities amended the Criminal and Criminal Procedure Codes in 2017 to effectively prosecute all forms of criminal conduct with elements of extremism. The Special Criminal Court was authorized to deal with criminal offences of extremism. The legal protection against extremism, including defamation of a nation and race and incitement to violence based on race, nationality, ethnicity, sexual orientation or religion had been improved.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

20. During the interactive dialogue, 80 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

28. Australia welcomed the efforts of Slovakia to protect the rights of LGBTI peoples. It remained concerned about discrimination against the Roma. While noting the efforts of Slovakia to combat corruption, Australia remained concerned about reported levels of corruption.

29. Austria noted a decrease of violence against the Roma due to the efforts of the Government. Journalists had been subject to lawsuits and to serious verbal insults, including by officials. Austria highlighted the importance to protect journalists against any form of intimidation.

30. Azerbaijan appreciated the adoption of the Action Plan to Protect the Rights of National Minorities and Ethnic Groups 2016–2020. However, it expressed concern that intolerance against Muslims, Jews and persons of African descent, and hate crime and hate speech against minorities remained prevalent.

32. Belarus noted prevalence of hate crimes, including against the Roma and Muslims, the use of excessive force by police, limitations on the right to vote of persons with disabilities and inadequate punishment for the crimes of human trafficking. The level of cooperation with special procedures mandate holders remained limited.

33. Belgium noted the efforts of Slovakia to implement the recommendations from its previous review. It considered that further progress could be made to promote the rights of women and to combat against discrimination.

34. Benin noted with satisfaction reforms to improve the normative and institutional framework for human rights, including the amendment to the Education and Training Act, and the creation of the Office of the Commissioner for Children and the Office of the Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities.

36. Brazil commended Slovakia for changes in criminal law related to the crimes of extremism and racially motivated crimes and the enactment of the Crime Victims Act, particularly the provisions related to the protection of victims of domestic violence.

38. Canada was concerned at the killing of a journalist and his fiancée in February 2018, and hoped that all the political leaders reaffirm their determination to fight against corruption, defend freedom of expression and independence of the media.

39. Chile recognized the efforts of the Government for the development of national strategies in relation to gender equality and the elimination of racism, xenophobia and discrimination.

40. China welcomed efforts of the Government to develop education and increase employment, combat racism, extremism and hate speech. It noted the adoption of the Strategy for the Integration of the Roma until 2020.

41. Croatia commended the adoption of strategies on gender equality and on human rights. It noted high representation of women in the judiciary, but was concerned about underrepresentation of women in Parliament and the Government.

50. Finland commended Slovakia for its strong antidiscrimination legislation. It noted, however, that there was a need to monitor its implementation and enhance the awareness of both citizens and the administration on its contents and implications.

51. France welcomed the very satisfactory human rights situation in Slovakia and encouraged it to strengthen further the respect for human rights.

52. Georgia appreciated voluntary pledges and commitments of Slovakia within the Human Rights Council for 2018-2020 and welcomed the implementation of national strategies and plans in various areas of human rights, particularly the National Strategy on the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights.

53. Germany acknowledged the increasing participation of Roma in national, regional and local elections and welcomed the explicit recognition of crimes against Roma. It was concerned by discrimination against Roma and persistent hate speech, particularly against minorities, Muslims and non-citizens.

54. Greece commended the adoption of the National Strategies for the Protection of Children from Violence and for Gender Equality, as well as the National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Violence against Women.

55. Slovakia established an interministerial mechanism for the follow up of the recommendations from the universal periodic review, which worked in consultation with civil society. In 2015, the Ministry of Justice was assigned important responsibilities related to human rights, including coordination of the implementation of national policies related to human rights, while various ministries were responsible for the implementation of those policies.

56. The Government adopted the Action Plan for Preventing all Forms of Discrimination 2016-2019 to strengthen the implementation of the Anti-discrimination Act and support the efforts of public organizations and non-governmental organisations in combatting discrimination. The Slovak National Centre for Human Rights made an analysis of the Act and put forward several recommendations on how to improve the Act.

57. Despite the fact that a draft action plan on the rights of LGBTI persons was not ultimately adopted, the ministries had been implementing several activities envisaged in the plan. The Criminal Code provided the protection against hate crime and hate speech on the grounds of sexual orientation. An expert committee on the rights of LGBTI persons, which was composed of government and non-governmental entities, had been working on policies to ensure equality for LGBTI persons.

58. The Ministry of Justice, in coordination with the Council of Europe had been implementing a large-scale project to improve the efficiency of the judiciary. The Ministry of Justice established working groups on some priority issues related to the judiciary. The appointment procedure for judges was reformed.

59. The National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Violence against Women 2014-2019 was drafted in line with the provisions of the Istanbul Convention despite the fact that Slovakia had not yet ratified the Convention. Amendments of several legal acts had improved the protection of the victims of domestic violence, including by extending the expulsion order from 48 hours to up to 10 days. An important step was the establishment of the Coordinating Methodical Centre for Gender-Based and Domestic Violence and the non-stop free of charge Helpline for Women Experiencing Violence.

60. Slovakia adopted the Act on the Commissioner for Children and the Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities in 2016 to strengthen the protection of the rights of child and persons with disabilities by establishing an independent institution to receive and investigate individual cases and recommend remedies. The Commissioner was authorised to enter into civil proceedings as a third party and to inform the Government if a public body did not accept or implement its recommendations.

61. The Act on Social Economy and Social Enterprises aimed at strengthening the rights of vulnerable groups in the labour market. The Government had increased the minimum wage, social benefits and pensions to improve the standard of living and combat poverty.

62. Honduras congratulated Slovakia for the progress achieved in the area of human rights and welcomed the voluntary commitments made by Slovakia. It expressed its support to Slovakia for effective implementation of the recommendations received.

63. Hungary noted that Slovakia was a party to almost all core international human rights conventions. It, however, noted that despite its efforts to address human rights challenges, there remained a room for further improvement.

64. Iceland commended Slovakia for the progress made in strengthening the policy and institutional framework for the promotion and protection of human rights.

65. India noted positively the measures to prevent all forms of discrimination, protect the rights of minorities and ethnic groups, combat human trafficking and promote rights of persons with disabilities. It noted, however, the incidents of continued racial discrimination against Roma.

67. Islamic Republic of Iran commended the adoption of the National Strategy for the Protection of Children. It noted concerns expressed over the prevalence of racial discrimination against different minorities, especially Roma, Muslims and persons of African descent.

69. Ireland welcomed the adoption of strategies and action plans addressing specific human rights issues, notably those relating to combatting violence against women and protecting children from violence. It welcomed measures taken to address education needs of children.

72. Jordan commended the adoption of a number of strategies, notably to protect women and children from violence. However, it noted that stereotypes continued to be entrenched in society and that discrimination against minorities was a concern.

73. Kyrgyzstan supported the strengthening of the national legislative frameworks, ratification of a number of international human rights instruments, and undertaking practical measures in promoting human rights.

74. Libya commended Slovakia for the progress made in promoting human rights, in particular through the adoption of voluntary commitments made to the Human Rights Council.

75. Liechtenstein welcomed measures taken to prevent the placement of children in special schools because of their social background, and to provide access to preschool education to Roma children.

76. Malaysia noted that Slovakia had taken initiatives to address violence against women as outlined in the National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Violence against Women. It welcomed the National Strategy for Gender Equality, and encouraged Slovakia to adopt measures to reduce maternal mortality.

78. Mexico acknowledged progress since the last review, in particular the adoption of national strategies on promoting human rights, gender equality, and Roma integration, and the Slovak government's commitment to institutional protection of the rights of women.

79. Mongolia encouraged Slovakia to further strengthen its measures for prevention and elimination of violence against women and enhance implementation of the relevant national action plans by allocating the necessary human, technical and financial resources.

81. Myanmar noted the implementation of National Strategy for the Protection of Children from Violence, the National Action Plan for Prevention and Elimination of Violence against Women, and a national strategy and an action plan on gender equality.
82. The Netherlands commended Slovakia for the adoption of a national strategy and action plan on gender equality and for developments related to the rights of LGBTI persons, including the establishment of a Committee on the rights of LGBTI persons. However, it noted that LGBTI persons still faced discrimination.

83. Norway commended Slovakia for its efforts towards Roma inclusion. It recognised acceptance by Slovakia same-sex marriages for residency purposes.

84. Pakistan noted the National Strategy for the Protection of Children from Violence and the establishment of a National Coordination Centre for Resolving the Issues of Violence against Children. It was concerned at the prevalence of racial discrimination against Roma, Muslims and persons of African descent.

85. The Philippines welcomed implementation of measures and strategies to eliminate violence against women and children, efforts in combatting human trafficking, and the adoption of the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights.

86. Poland commended the new national legislation adopted with regard to the rights of children and women and the fight against all forms of extremism, racism and xenophobia.

87. Portugal welcomed the measures taken since the second review, namely in the field of protection of children from violence.

89. The Republic of Moldova welcomed the adoption of the national referral mechanism for identifying trafficking victims and the implementation of measures of social legal protection of children and social care for victims of human trafficking.

90. Romania commended the adoption of the National Strategy for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and the measures taken to protect women and children against violence, to promote gender equality, facilitate access to education and protect the rights of minorities.

91. The Russian Federation expressed concern about discrimination against the Roma, high rate of employment among Roma and hoped that improvements in those areas would be made soon. It welcomed the Strategy for the Integration of Roma and relevant action plans, noting that Roma should be included in the implementation process.

92. Senegal applauded the National Strategy for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and the Rural Development Programme. It praised Slovakia for its financial contributions to the work of the OHCHR.

94. Singapore acknowledged measures to protect the rights of minorities and marginalised communities, including the Roma, to combat domestic violence, including by introducing the definition of such crime in the Crime Victims Act, and to combat human trafficking.

95. Slovenia praised the adoption of strategies to protect the rights of children, women and minorities. It encouraged Slovakia to take additional measures to safeguard the freedom of expression and to promote gender equality.

96. The delegation of Slovakia stated that the Government set up the position of the Plenipotentiary for National Minorities to improve the protection of the rights of persons belonging to minorities. The Government gave a priority to improving the situation of the Roma in various areas. The Government adopted the National Roma Integration Strategy up to 2020. The strategy consisted of seven national plans covering health, education, housing, employment, financial inclusion, non-discrimination and approaches toward majority population – initiative of Roma integration through communication. In 2018, the Government approved a decree, which outlined eleven concrete steps to strengthen the efforts to ensure integration of the members of the Roma in society.

97. The National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights emphasised the importance of maintaining the continuous dialogue with civil society. The Office of the Plenipotentiary for the development of civil society was assigned to coordinate the engagement and the participation of civil society in public affairs.

98. The Government set a priority to ensure equal treatment in the provision of accessible and high quality healthcare services for all citizens, in line with international human rights standards. Health professionals were required to follow code of ethics in order to avoid violations of legal requirements in access to health care. The Government made efforts to provide adequate care for pregnant women and unborn. All women had access to various methods of contraception, albeit they were not covered under the public health scheme.

99. The Government adopted legislative and other measures to address illegal sterilisation. Since 2004, the Government had not received any information or requests to investigate cases of illegal sterilisations, which could indicate that legislation, had been effective to prevent such cases. Healthcare workers specialised in sexual and reproductive health were informed about the requirement of having consent for sterilisation procedures.

100. Due to incidents of extremism in other European Union member states, the Government had implemented various preventative measures, including awareness raising campaigns, educational trainings and concrete legislative measures.

101. The Concept of the Fight against Extremism 2015-2019 represented a basic document to define the strategic priorities in the area of prevention and elimination of the radicalization, extremism and associated anti-society activities. The authorities also adopted the Action Plan to Prevent and Eliminate Racism, Xenophobia and Anti-Semitism and Other Forms of Intolerance 2016-2018, and it established in 2011 the Committee to Prevent Racism, Xenophobia and Antisemitism. The Committee represented the unique association, which included representatives from the central and regional governments, civil society and experts with the academic background. The authorities adopted an amendment to the Criminal Code in 2017 to make the investigation of extremism and racially motivated crimes more effective.

102. The Government did not intervened in enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms by everyone regardless of religious affiliation. In 2010, a decision of the Constitutional Court emphasized that members of non-registered religious organisations were entitled to equal rights along with registered organisations. The authorities had provided enabling environment for functioning of non-registered religious organisations as long as their activities complied with national legislation.

103. Spain commended the adoption of the National Strategy for Gender Equality and National Action Plan on the Prevention and Elimination of Violence against Women and recognised the existence of the Special Representative of Roma. It encouraged Slovakia to continue combating gender discrimination.

104. The State of Palestine welcomed the steps to combat discrimination, including the adoption of the Action Plan for Preventing all Forms of Discrimination.

105. Sweden praised the legislative amendments to reduce segregation in schools. It was concerned about developments regarding freedom of expression and that Roma women and LGBTI persons had been still facing obstacles in enjoyment of their rights.
106. Switzerland was concerned about discrimination against the Roma and deterioration of the situation in the area of freedom of expression and freedom of the media.

107. Thailand applauded efforts to implement the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights, to establish the Office of the Commissioner for Children, to introduce education law amendment and to integrate minorities.

108. Togo commended the adoption of the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights and expressed conviction that further progress could be made to ensure better enjoyment of human rights.

109. Tunisia praised the adoption of legislation and strategies to combat discrimination and violence against women and children.

110. Turkey welcomed the efforts to adopt the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights and eliminate discrimination against Roma, noting that the Roma children and women continued to face discrimination in education and healthcare.

111. Turkmenistan praised the approval of the National Strategy for the Protection and Promotion of Human Rights and other strategies, promoting the rights of women, children and persons with disabilities.

112. The United Kingdom noted that improvements were required on rights of the Roma, tackling corruption, reforming police governance and enhancing the effectiveness of the judiciary, and that Slovakia was committed to address those issues. It urged Slovakia to address issues of media freedom and protect journalists.

113. The United States of America welcomed reforms in the selection process of judges and the adoption of code of conduct for judges. It noted with concern violence against minorities, including the Roma, shortfalls in integrating Roma and combating discrimination.

114. Ukraine commended Slovakia for positive changes in the area of human rights and in particular in the protection of the rights of women and children through the adoption of national strategies on human rights, on gender equality and on the protection of children from violence.

115. The Government adopted the National Programme for Development of Education and Training, Quality and Availability of Education, which would be updated regularly depending on the status of implementation. The Programme aimed at enhancing inclusion and the transition to a new education model taking into account the Finnish education model. It included a set of measures to ensure inclusion in education and strengthen support for Roma children and children from socially disadvantaged families, to develop pre-school compulsory education and to increase a number of school personnel. Since 2016, the Ministry of Education had been implementing a national project – a school open to all – to ensure an inclusive education in 130 primary schools and 50 kindergartens. The project focused on the prevention and elimination of segregation of Roma students and the enhancement of competencies of professionals in identifying segregation in schools.

116. The Government had been implementing a new directive to prevent bullying and cyberbullying in schools starting in 2018.

117. The Government believed that sustainable development of its people would be possible to achieve by ensuring security, prosperity and human rights. In ensuring the respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, the Government had been aware of the need to remain vigilant since the rights and freedoms had been under attack. The authorities had brought to justice eight individuals due to the investigation of killing of Ján Kuciak, an investigative journalist. The Government continued to explore ways on how to improve freedom of press and expression and to ensure security of journalists.
118. Slovakia had remained committed to the rule of law. The experience of Slovakia under various governing systems had demonstrated that democracy and rule of law were the only guarantees to ensure sovereignty of its people. Holders of radical and extreme views had been making attempt to gain power to limit freedoms and human rights by disseminating incorrect information. However, Slovakia had been relying on its mechanisms of checks and balances in such situation.

119. In conclusion, the head of the delegation expressed sincere appreciation to the United Nations Member States for their engagement and recommendations during the interactive dialogue. He reiterated the commitment of Slovakia to protect and promote human rights.

120. Slovakia was also committed to multilateralism and the Government had cooperated with international community to prevent and counter common threats, representing a danger to human civilisation, human rights and democracy. The engagement with the universal periodic review had reinforced Slovakia’s belief in meaningful international cooperation. Slovakia would pay its upmost attention to the recommendations received. The Government was also pleased to use the opportunity to share its best practices and lessons learnt in the spirit of multilateral cooperation.
