Report of the National Commission for the Prevention of Torture NCPT

on the third Universal Periodic Review of Switzerland

The National Commission for the Prevention of Torture (NCPT) was constituted in 2009 as the National Preventive Mechanism (NPM) in accordance with article 17 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (OP-CAT). Through regular visits and ongoing dialogue with the authorities the NCPT's aim is to ensure that the rights of persons deprived of their liberty are respected. The NCPT submits specific recommendations to the authorities, contributing significantly to preventing torture and inhuman and degrading treatment, thus attempting to ensure the protection of human rights for all forms of deprivation of liberty throughout Switzerland. It has access to all information concerning the treatment of people deprived of their liberty and to all places of detention as defined in article 4 OP-CAT.

The NCPT is composed of twelve members appointed by the Federal Council for a four-year term. Its members are experts in the fields of law enforcement and fundamental rights, execution of sentences and measures, medicine and psychiatry. Both sexes and all linguistic regions are adequately represented.

Since 2014 the Commission has specifically focused on vulnerable persons and published several thematic reports on areas of concern and relevance to fundamental rights. Visits were conducted in relation with an audit of specific subject areas. Some of the main findings of the in depth reviews will be outlined under section III.<sup>1</sup>

I. Recommendations<sup>2</sup> concerning the prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment accepted by Switzerland

a. 123.17. – 123.23. Establish an independent national human rights institution in accordance with the Paris Principles (several States)

1. In 2011 the Federal Council established the Swiss Centre of Expertise in Human Rights (SCHR). The mandate of the SCHR was extended by the Federal Council on 1 July 2015 for a maximum of five years.<sup>3</sup>
2. The NCPT welcomes the extension of the mandate, nevertheless it invites Switzerland to take necessary steps towards a permanent institution in compliance with the Paris Principles.<sup>4</sup>
3. While access to the judicial defense system is guaranteed in Switzerland, the NCPT notes with concern that there is a general lack of access to judicial defense mechanisms, in particular for convicted persons serving long sentences.

b. 123.78. Give consideration to incorporating the UN Rules for the Treatment of Women Prisoners and Non-Custodial Measures for Women Offenders, also known as the «Bangkok Rules», as part of its policy on the treatment of prisoners (Thailand)

4. During its inspection visits in institutions where women are deprived of their liberty, the NCPT regularly notes that the rights and specific needs of women are not being properly addressed by many institutions, in particular in pre-trial detention facilities. The Commission encourages the authorities to further prioritize the rights of women detainees and to take appropriate measures to address their specific needs.

c. 123.47. Put in place independent inquiries on the use of excessive force during deportations (Cote d'Ivoire)

5. The NCPT was mandated in 2012 to monitor transfers to the airport as well as deportation/repatriation flights.<sup>5</sup>
6. The Commission addresses its findings and recommendations concerning deportation procedures to the relevant national and cantonal authorities in specialised dialogues and publishes an annual report<sup>6</sup>. While the NCPT engages into fact-finding with respect to individual cases by asking the authorities to explain their action, it has neither the role of an independent inquiry institution nor decision making power regarding individual cases.<sup>7</sup>

II. Recommendations concerning the prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment rejected by Switzerland

a. 123.15. Include in its Criminal Code a definition of torture (South Africa)<sup>8</sup>

7. As mentioned in previously published statements<sup>9</sup>, the Commission supports this recommendation and is of the view that the current provisions in the Swiss Criminal Code<sup>10</sup> should be complemented accordingly.<sup>11</sup>

b. 123.54. Provide adequate accommodation for refugees and asylum seekers and their children, away from unhealthy locations such as near airports (Namibia)

8. The Commission has visited reception and procedure centres for asylum seekers and has found that the facilities were not always adequately equipped for families. In some cases, asylum seekers stay in underground civil defence facilities, which provide little space for privacy. The Commission recommended that such facilities should only be used in exceptional circumstances and for the shortest period of time.<sup>12</sup>

c. 123.79. Build or designate detention facilities for unaccompanied minors seeking immigration protection separate from adult facilities (United States of America)

9. The NCPT noted the presence of a substantial number of unaccompanied minors during its visits to reception and procedure centers for asylum seekers. The Commission noted with concern that sleeping quarters for minors were not always separated from adults. The NCPT therefore recommended in accordance with international standards to separately house unaccompanied minors, especially in sleeping areas and to draft a concept note taking into account the specific needs of unaccompanied migrant children.<sup>13</sup>

10. In addition to its monitoring visits, the Commission conducted a review in all 26 Cantons to determine how many minors were detained on immigration purposes. The analysis came to the conclusion that while only few Cantons<sup>14</sup> detain minors in exceptional circumstances and for a generally short period of time, detention conditions in some of the institutions are not suitable for minors, either because minors are not adequately separated from adults, or because the detention regime is not adapted to their specific needs.<sup>15</sup> The Commission therefore urged the authorities to refrain from detaining minors on immigration purposes.

d. 123.9. Withdraw its reservations to Article 37 (c) of CRC (Uruguay)
123.80. Protect minors and ensure that imprisonment of minors is separated from imprisonment of adults (Uzbekistan)

11. With a view to withdrawing Switzerland's reserve to article 37 (c) CRC, the Cantons benefited from a transitional period until 1 January 2017 in order to adapt the institutional setting.<sup>16</sup> During its monitoring visits, the NCPT has specifically focused on the conditions of minor detainees. While most institutions separate minors from adults and, in some cases, house them in special units, the NCPT noted that in some places of detention, minors were not adequately separated from adults and detention conditions were deemed unacceptable.<sup>17</sup> The NCPT has further raised concerns about juveniles being held in their cells for up to 22 hours a day and urged the institutions to adapt the detention regime to the needs of children.<sup>18</sup>

12. As the transitional period has now come to an end, the Commission urges the authorities

A separation of unaccompanied minors from adults is also envisaged in Article 4 para. 1 of the Regulation for the use of Federal installations and buildings to accommodate asylum seekers of 24 November 2007 (Verordnung des EJPD zum Betrieb von Unterkünften des Bundes im Asylbereich; SR 142.311.23).

In addition Switzerland has already retracted its reserve to article 10 para. 2 (b) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), which foresees the separation of accused juvenile persons from adults.

to take all the necessary steps in order to allow for proper separation of all minors in detention and to ensure conditions of detention respective of minors' specific needs.<sup>19</sup>

III. Concerns of the NCPT not covered by the UPR recommendations

a. Measures of physical and chemical restraint in psychiatric institutions

13. In 2016 and 2017, the Commission conducted monitoring visits to psychiatric institutions.<sup>20</sup>

14. The NCPT noted that psychiatric institutions make regular use of physical and chemical restraint measures, which were most often insufficiently protocolled.<sup>21</sup> In some cases, the Commission concluded that the duration of physical restraint measures was excessive. It further recommends to refrain from applying seven-point restraints. While the Swiss Civil Code<sup>22</sup> foresees the drafting of a treatment plan in consultation with the patient<sup>23</sup>, the NCPT noticed their frequent absence and urged the institutions to draw up such plans accordingly.

b. Solitary confinement

15. In 2013, the Commission published a report on the solitary confinement and the conditions of detention in high security detention units.<sup>24</sup>

16. The NCPT recommended to take steps to ensure that the placement be reviewed by an independent authority on a three month basis.<sup>25</sup> The Commission further recommended not to order a placement on the ground of "risk of flight" or "disturbance of order" in the facility, highlighting that solitary confinement measures must not be 'hidden' disciplinary measures but are to be strictly limited to situations where people pose a severe threat to

The treatment plan serves as a basis for treatment without consent (cf. Report of the Special Rapporteur on torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, Juan E. Méndez, A/HRC/22/53, 1 February 2013, para. 66; The Istanbul Statement on the Use and Effects of Solitary Confinement, adopted on 9 December 2007 at the International Psychological Trauma Symposium, Annex to the Interim report of the Special Rapporteur on torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, A/63/175, 28 July 2008, para. 44).

third parties or to themselves.<sup>26</sup>

17. The NCPT further noted with serious concern the use of solitary confinement for persons with mental disorders and urged the authorities to find appropriate solutions for the placement in a more adequate psychiatric setting.<sup>27</sup>
18. With regard to detention conditions<sup>28</sup>, it appeared that the individual needs of these most often vulnerable detainees were not adequately met and restrictions were sometimes imposed categorically. In at least two cases, the Commission considered the duration of solitary confinement to be excessive and urged the authorities to take immediate action to progressively open up the detention regime.

c. In-patient therapeutic measures in places of detention

19. Between 2013 and 2016 the Commission conducted a nationwide review of establishments for the execution of in-patient therapeutic measures<sup>29</sup> and drafted a report with recommendations addressed to the authorities for statement.<sup>30</sup>
20. The Commission notes that due to a lack of sufficient places, therapeutic needs of detainees were inadequately met in regular prisons while they were waiting for long periods before being transferred to a suitable establishment. The NCPT observed in particular that the detention regime in regular detention centres was most often inadequate and that disciplinary sanctions did not take due consideration of the specific needs of persons suffering from mental disorder.<sup>31</sup>
21. The Commission further highlighted the importance of progressively introducing relaxation measures in order to allow detainees to train for future resocialisation and noted with regret that these were often not granted on security reasons.<sup>32</sup>

d. Conditions in pre-trial detention

22. In 2014 the NCPT conducted an in-depth review of the pre-trial detention conditions in Switzerland and addressed its recommendations to the authorities.<sup>33</sup>
23. During its monitoring visits, the NCPT observed that the pre-trial detention regime was often more restrictive than for convicted prisoners, particularly in terms of the restrictions imposed on the liberty of movement. In most pre-trial detention facilities, detainees regularly are locked up in their cells for 23 hours a day.<sup>34</sup> Contact with the outside world was often restricted based on the alleged danger of collusion. The Commission frequently found these restrictions to be disproportionate.
24. Regarding closed juvenile facilities, of which the NCPT conducted an in-depth review during 2014 and 2015<sup>35</sup>, the Commission noted with concern that pre-trial detention conditions were generally too restrictive and unsuitable for juveniles.<sup>36</sup> The Commission regularly pointed out in its recommendations that the detention regime was not fully consistent with international standards.<sup>37</sup>

e. Forced removal transfers to airports and return flights

25. The NCPT has been monitoring transfers to the airport and forced return flights (Level IV) since July 2012. In its most recent report<sup>38</sup> the Commission has welcomed, that no case of forced chemical restraint has been reported since 2015. The use of physical restraints during transfers to the airport was generally applied on a more differentiated basis than in previous years. Nevertheless, the practice regarding the use of physical restraints varies enormously among Cantons. In some cases, the NCPT considered the use of force to be excessive.<sup>39</sup>
26. Occasionally, the Commission observed a separation of children from their parents prior to
