

ADVANCE QUESTIONS TO GEORGIA – ADD.3

GERMANY

- What measures has the Georgian government undertaken to advance the participation of women and ethnic minorities in the political process in Georgia, given the relatively low numbers of female representatives and representatives of ethnic minorities in the national parliament as well as in the institutions of local self-governance, and what have been the results of these measures?
- How does the Georgian government assess the effectiveness of the newly established labor inspection, and what measures are being undertaken to ensure that the number of enterprises taking part in the voluntary monitoring process is increasing?
- As far as we are aware, the Tripartite Social Partnership Commission (TSPC) under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister of Georgia has only met once since the current government took office. How does the Georgian government view the role of the TSPC in efforts to enhance social dialogue, and which other measures is the government undertaking to ensure the advancement of the social dialogue in Georgia?
