

ANNEX 1: Aotearoa NZ IDAHOBIT Day Coalition and endorsements by other groups

This 2018 UPR submission updates a report written by a coalition of community-based organisations in preparation for a panel discussion with political parties on 17th May 2017, known in Aotearoa New Zealand as the International Day against Homophobia, Biphobia, Intersex discrimination, and Transphobia (IDAHOBIT). The 2017 report summarised longstanding concerns about the human rights issues that Rainbow communities face because of our sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or sex characteristics (SOGIESC).

This UPR submission was written by individuals and groups that are members of that Aotearoa New Zealand IDAHOBIT Day Coalition. It also benefited from significant input by other Rainbow organisations and allies, who contributed to the submission prior to giving their endorsement. A full list of groups endorsing the submission is detailed below, in alphabetical order.
