Human Rights Council
Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review
Thirty-fourth session
Geneva, 4-15 November 2019

Draft report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review*

Slovenia

* The annex is being circulated without formal editing, in the language of submission only.

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-fourth session from 4 to 15 November 2019. The review of Slovenia was held at the 13th meeting, on 12 November 2019. The delegation of Slovenia was headed by the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Slovenia, Dr. Miro Cerar. At its 17th meeting, held on 14 November 2019, the Working Group adopted the report on Slovenia.
2. On 15 January 2019, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Slovenia: Bangladesh, Denmark and Egypt.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Slovenia:
 - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/34/SVN/1);
 - (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/34/SVN/2);
 - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/34/SVN/3).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Germany, Portugal, on behalf of Group of Friends on national mechanisms for implementation, reporting and follow-up”, Spain, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America was transmitted to Slovenia through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The head of the delegation of Slovenia informed the Human Rights Council that the Government prepared the national report by involving various ministries and other government institutions as well as national human rights institutions. The Government also sought views of representatives of civil society through regular briefings.
6. Slovenia accorded a high priority to the respect, protection and fulfilment of human rights. The universal periodic review process served as an additional incentive to make further improvements in this respect. Slovenia tasked the National Inter-ministerial Commission for Human Rights for the implementation and monitoring of recommendations from the review. The Government submitted a voluntary mid-term report on the implementation of the recommendations in 2017.
7. Slovenia fully or partially implemented 138 recommendations out of total 142 recommendations that it had accepted. The delegation highlighted some of the achievements made since 2014. Slovenia amended the Human Rights Ombudsman Act to broaden the mandate the Ombudsman with a view to obtaining A status in line with the Paris principles. The amended Act established the Council of Human Rights, the Centre for Human Rights, and an institute of child's advocates within the Office of the Ombudsman.
8. In 2016, the Protection against Discrimination Act strengthened the mandate of the Advocate of the Principle of Equality to assist persons subjected to discrimination in administrative and judicial proceedings, to monitor protection against discrimination at the national level, to implement preventive measures or redress discrimination, including awareness raising and research activities in this area. The Advocate was authorised to request a review of the constitutionality of legal acts.

9. The delegation reiterated the commitment of Slovenia to the empowerment of women and gender equality at national and international levels. Slovenia has taken several measures to prevent and combat domestic violence. The Government submitted its first national report on the implementation of the Istanbul Convention, which was ratified in 2014. The Government carried out a number of awareness raising campaigns about domestic violence and cyber violence and expanded the network of crisis centres and safe houses throughout the country. The Government implemented several programs to prevent violence against older women. The Government provided funding for several projects related to gender equality that were implemented by representatives of civil society.

10. In 2016, Slovenia adopted the Civil Union Act, granting heterosexual couples and same-sex couples living in civil union the same rights as those of married couples, except in relation to medically assisted procreation and joint adoption of children.

11. The Government has taken additional measures to resolve the status of persons erased from the register of permanent residents of Slovenia after the dissolution of Yugoslavia. Slovenia adopted a law to enable every "erased" person to claim just compensation. In 2016, the Council of Europe deemed the implementation of the related judgement of the European Court for Human Rights satisfactory, and concluded its supervision over the matter.

12. Slovenia made considerable progress in reducing a backlog of court cases and shortening the length of trials to ensure the right to fair trial without undue delays.

13. The Government adopted zero tolerance towards hate speech. Public incitement to hatred, violence or intolerance were a criminal offence under certain circumstances, punishable by imprisonment. The promotion of tolerance and respect for diversity were among the goals of the public education system. A special web site allowed anonymous reporting of hate speech or other illegal web content. The Ministry of Culture concluded a public consultation on a new Media Act aiming to adapt legislation to the new digital media reality by including provisions to counter hate speech in media, including online and new digital media.

14. In 2018, Slovenia adopted its first National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights.

15. In 2016, Slovenia incorporated the right to drinking water in the Constitution in order to guarantee access to drinking water to all on a non-profit basis.

16. The Constitution guaranteed freedom of expression and the Constitution and the Media Act adequately protected the right to public information. In 2019, Slovenia has started to amend its relevant legislations to ensure, inter alia, financial support for the development of independent media operating in public interest.

17. The Government established an Expert Group for Resolving the Spatial Issues of Roma Settlements with a view to resolve access to water, sanitation and electricity for Roma as a guideline for the future work of the state authorities, municipalities and other institutions. Local communities provided the basic communal infrastructure to about 75 percent of the Roma settlements, with funding from state budget and the European Union funds. The National Programme of Measures for Roma for the period 2017–2021 included measures to prevent discrimination against Roma and to ensure social inclusion of the Roma. Members of the Roma minority could access to legal aid in line with criteria established by the Legal Aid Act.

18. The Domestic Violence Prevention Act included provisions prohibiting corporal punishment. The 2017 amendments to the Organization and Financing of Education Act prohibited corporal punishment of children in kindergartens, schools, and in educational institutions for children and youth with special needs.

19. The delegation underlined that fighting corruption remained one of the priorities of the State Prosecutor General. The Government submitted to the Parliament amendments to the Integrity and Prevention of Corruption Act aiming at improving further legislation and enabling the Commission for the Prevention of Corruption to perform its tasks more effectively. The Government adopted the Programme on Anti-Corruption Measures for 2017–2019 containing measures to strengthen the integrity of public employees, high officials and other employees in the public sector and increase the transparency of operations in the public sector.

20. Slovenia had comprehensive laws on the restitution of property and ensured the return of confiscated properties during World War II. The Ministry of Justice and World Jewish Restitution Organization jointly commissioned a study in 2018 to evaluate the size of heirless Jewish-owned properties of that period. The Ministry of Justice would take relevant measures after analysing findings of the study.

21. In 2013, the Constitutional Court ruled that restrictions on ritual slaughter in the Animal Protection Act was in line with Constitution by arguing that the restrictions protected animals from the suffering that could be prevented without disproportionately infringing on religious freedom.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

22. During the interactive dialogue, 81 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

23. Rwanda commended Slovenia for the steps taken to implement the recommendations of its review of 2014. It applauded Slovenia's firm commitment to women's empowerment and gender equality at the national and international level.

24. Serbia commended Slovenia for all the measures adopted to strengthening the capacity of the Human Rights Ombudsman in conformity with the Paris Principles.

25. Slovakia welcomed the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution establishing the right to water as a constitutionally guaranteed right. Slovakia appreciated progress made in ensuring equal opportunities for Roma children to education.

26. Spain noted with appreciation the adoption of the Protection against Discrimination Act and the legal amendments to bring its national human rights institution in line with the Paris Principles.

27. The State of Palestine noted with appreciation measures taken regarding the protection of the right to health and in the area of business and human rights, including programmes and action plans adopted in those areas.

28. Thailand commended Slovenia for its achievements in providing universal access to health services and for its efforts to promote and protect rights of minorities, including improve living conditions of Roma community.

29. Tunisia welcomed the efforts made by Slovenia to improve its legislative and institutional framework, and to establish a national human rights institution in compliance with the Paris Principles.

32. The United Kingdom commended Slovenia for signing the Global Pledge on Media Freedom and encouraged Slovenia to ensure that a new draft legislation in this area would be in line with the Global pledge. It also called for the decriminalization of defamation.

33. The United States of America commended Slovenia for launching a joint research project with the World Jewish Restitution Organization to compile a historical record of heirless, formerly Jewish-owned properties in the country.

34. Uruguay commended Slovenia for the adoption of the National Programme for Equal Opportunities for Women and Men for 2015–2020 and for its projects, implemented jointly with NGOs, aimed at eliminating gender stereotypes.
35. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela recognized the work done by Slovenia to implement the accepted recommendations from its universal periodic review of 2014.
36. Afghanistan congratulated Slovenia for its efforts to establish a national human rights institution to be accredited with A Status, and for the allocation of additional funds aimed at preventing trafficking in human beings and providing assistance to child victims.
37. Albania welcomed efforts made by Slovenia in favour of youth, and their integration in the labour market. It encouraged Slovenia to increase efforts to set up a new programme for the protection of the rights of children for 2019–2024.
38. Algeria welcomed the ratification of the Istanbul Convention and the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on a communications procedure. It also noted measures taken to reduce poverty and social exclusion in the country.
39. Angola commended Slovenia for the ratification of important regional and international treaties. Angola highlighted the importance of establishing a national human rights institution in accordance with the Paris Principles.
40. Argentina noted with appreciation the presentation of the midterm report on the implementation of the recommendations from universal periodic review and welcomed the signing of the Declaration on Safe Schools and its Guidelines.
41. Australia acknowledged that Slovenia had made positive progress since its universal periodic review of 2014, including improving its human rights bodies, its judicial system and the situation for 'erased' persons. Australia encourage Slovenia to continue its efforts on those issues.
42. Austria commended Slovenia for the progress made since the last universal periodic review, and in particular the explicit prohibition of corporal punishment and degrading treatment of children. Austria noted with concern that a considerable number of denationalisation proceedings were still pending.
43. Azerbaijan was concerned about the reported cases of discrimination against some specific groups, in particular towards the migrant workers, and noted the necessity of a comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation.
44. The Bahamas congratulated Slovenia for the ratification of the Optional Protocol on the Rights of the Child and harmonisation of the law on marriage and family with the Convention. The Bahamas noted the continued challenges to address racial and ethnic discrimination.
45. Bangladesh commended Slovenia for amending the Family Violence Prevention Act to prevent degrading treatment of children, but was concerned about the high prevalence of domestic violence. Bangladesh was concerned about the risk of poverty and the working conditions of migrants.
46. Belarus noted the Government' efforts to protect social and economic rights. Belarus noted, however, concerns expressed about conditions in penitentiary institutions, a lack of adequate mechanisms for the identification and support of victims of human trafficking, discrimination against the Roma and situation of migrants.
47. Bhutan welcomed the amendments to the Human Rights Ombudsman Act and the establishment of the Advocate of the Principle of Equality. Bhutan noted measures taken to reduce poverty and social exclusion and promote gender equality at national and international level.
48. Botswana appreciated legislative measures taken to implement accepted recommendations from the universal periodic review of 2014. It noted remaining challenges, including high levels of violence against women and racially motivated hate speech and violence.

49. Brazil noted initiatives to address major issues regarding the social and economic rights, but remained concerned at child marriages and issues with adequate housing in Roma community. It commended efforts to protect freedom of religion and the rights of older persons. Brazil encouraged Slovenia to promote rights of persons with disabilities, including inclusive education.
50. Bulgaria commended Slovenia for the improvement of legal and institutional framework for the protection of human rights. Bulgaria noted the adoption of legislation on the protection of the rights of the child.
51. Canada welcomed the Protection against Discrimination Act. It was concerned at challenges faced by the “erased” persons and difficulties they face in obtaining legal status. Canada encouraged Slovenia to adopt additional measures to restore their legal status.
52. Chile welcomed the ratification of the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe, broadening functions of the Human Rights Ombudsman functions in line with the Paris Principles and adoption of the National Programme of Measures for Roma for 2017–2021.
53. China noted with appreciation the measures to reduce poverty and to promote the rights of women and children, gender equality and combat trafficking in persons as well as the adoption of the National Programme of Measures for Roma.
54. Costa Rica noted measures to protect the rights of minorities, particularly the rights of Italian and Hungarian communities. Cost Rica was concerned about hate speech on the internet, especially against migrants, Roma, LGBTI persons and Muslims.
55. Croatia welcomed the Civil Union Act and the enhancement of the rights of Roma. It noted that Slovenia has not recognised Croatian community, though the largest ethnic group of and residing for centuries in the country, as an autochthonous national minority.
56. Cuba noted actions taken by Slovenia to bring up to date the legislative and institutional frameworks on development and the rights of minorities.
57. Cyprus welcomed measures introduced by Slovenia to address legal status of “erased” persons and to accelerate social integration of minorities, such as the National Programme of Measures for Roma.
58. Denmark commended Slovenia for adopting legislation to enable the Human Rights Ombudsman to apply for A status in accordance with the Paris Principles.
59. Djibouti welcomed the ratification of the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe and the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child. It encouraged Slovenia to allocate adequate resources for the functioning of the office of the Advocate of the Principle of Equality.
60. Dominican Republic welcomed efforts of Slovenia to protect and promote human rights promotion.
61. Ecuador noted the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child a children-related treaty, the establishment of Advocate of the Principle of Equality and projects implemented to eradicate cyber violence against women and children and to integrate foreigners in society.
62. The delegation of Slovenia stated that the legal framework included strong legal protection for the rights of all minorities, including preservation of their culture and languages. Italian and Hungarian minorities were constitutionally recognized autochthonous minorities with a special status. In 2018, the Special Rapporteur on minority issues identified several good practices and positive developments in the protection of minorities in Slovenia.
63. The delegation highlighted several measures taken in the area of migration, including the establishment of the Government Office for the Support and Integration of Migrants and the adoption of the National Strategy on Migration. The Government provided migrant children, regardless of their status, with access to educational system at all levels no later than 3 months upon their arrival, under the same conditions as Slovenian citizens as well as with free Slovenian language courses. Migrant children received medical treatment and adult migrants received urgent medical treatment with state funding. During the influx of migrants in the period of 2015–2016, the Government dealt with migration in a humane manner by providing the migrants with necessary shelter, food and access to health care.

64. Slovenia has made significant progress in protecting the rights of persons with disabilities since its second universal periodic review. Parliament adopted four laws concerning the rights of persons with severe disabilities, personal assistance system, accessibility for persons with disabilities and their right to vote through an effective access to polling stations and alternative voting methods.

65. Slovenia focused its efforts to prevent human trafficking and carried out several awareness-raising activities targeting public in general and in particular children, young persons, migrant workers and asylum seekers. Slovenia enforced the legal provisions criminalizing human trafficking with harsh punishments envisaged by legislation for such crimes and put an emphasis on international and regional cooperation in combating this crime.

66. The delegation explained that the article 297 of the Criminal Code addressed hate speech without using the term “hate speech” but categorizing it under the criminal offense of public incitement to hatred, violence or intolerance. The recent decision of the Supreme Court broadened the narrow interpretation of this offense. Discriminatory, racist or similar motives could be taken into account as an aggravating factor under the current criminal law.

67. The Government adopted measures to improve equal access of women to employment and close the gender pay gap. The delegation noted certain decrease in the representation of women in the recent parliamentary elections, but emphasized otherwise a high representation of women in the political life of the country and legislation in place to ensure their high representation in decision-making positions.

68. Slovenia established the institute of child's advocates in the Ombudsman's Office to ensure protection of the rights of children in judicial and administrative proceedings. The Government has been in the process of establishing a safe house for child victims of abuse and violence based on the Scandinavian model. The Government has introduced child-friendly rooms in a number of courts across the country to provide safe environment for children during judicial proceedings.

69. Despite prison overcrowding in one of the prisons in the past, Slovenia has been striving to comply with the Nelson Mandela Guidelines. The 2017 report of the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture identified some positive developments in this area.

70. Regarding the proposal to decriminalize defamation, the delegation explained that the Constitutional Court considered the criminal offense of defamation and insult in accordance with the Constitution and the case law of the European Court of Human Rights.

71. The public service broadcaster guaranteed a special programme for minorities coming from former Yugoslav republics especially emphasizing their language and culture. The Government also provided legal and financial support to preserve culture and languages of minorities. The Government reached a bilateral agreement with Austria to ensure cooperation of two countries in culture, education and science to meet the needs of German speaking communities in Slovenia.

72. The delegation stated that Slovenia strived for inclusive education without segregation, including in pre-school institutions. The education system included a special assistance to Roma children to achieve better learning results.

93. The Maldives commended Slovenia for its 2017 mid-term report regarding the implementation of the recommendations received during the second cycle of the universal periodic review.
94. Malta commended the ratification by Slovenia of several international human rights instruments, as well as its increased protection against discrimination, measures to protect minorities and efforts to prevent violence against women.
95. Mexico acknowledged the progress in the area of gender equality, which allowed Slovenia to be one of the countries in the world with the smallest gender pay gap.
96. Montenegro commended Slovenia for the establishment of new human rights institutions and measures to protect children from all forms of violence and vulnerable groups, including minorities. Montenegro encouraged Slovenia to combat hate speech in the Internet.
97. Myanmar commended Slovenia for its achievements in various areas, including the establishment of a national human rights institution, the reduction of poverty, and the protection of the rights of women and persons with disabilities.
98. Nepal welcomed the establishment of a national human rights institution with A status and efforts of the Government to promote equal opportunities for men and women and greater social inclusion for vulnerable groups.
99. The Netherlands congratulated Slovenia on the adoption of the Family Violence Prevention Act, which explicitly prohibits corporal punishment of children and its decision to increase spending for Advocate of the Principle of Equality.
100. Niger welcomed the measures taken by Slovenia to implement previously accepted recommendations and to strengthen its legal and institutional framework to better protect and promote human rights.
101. Nigeria noted with appreciation the efforts of Slovenia to combat human trafficking and provide protection for the victims. It commended Slovenia's policy on migration and efforts to protect the rights of migrants.
102. The North Macedonia welcomed the ratification of the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe and improvements of the legislative and institutional framework to combat violence against women. It appreciated legislative amendments to broaden the mandate of the Human Rights Ombudsman.
103. Pakistan noted with appreciation efforts of Slovenia to reduce poverty, social exclusion and to improve the situation of older persons. It remained concerned about an increase of cases of hate speech on the Internet, particularly against migrants, Roma and Muslims.
104. Peru acknowledged the efforts made by Slovenia regarding human rights, particularly the rights of women.
105. The Philippines acknowledged the progress made in the implementation of the recommendations accepted during the second universal periodic review.
106. Portugal congratulated Slovenia for its strong commitment to protect human rights, in particular its leading role in promoting the rights of older persons.
107. Qatar commended the establishment of a national human rights institution in line with the Paris Principles, and of the Advocate of the Principle of Equality.
108. The Republic of Korea noted efforts of Slovenia to protect the rights of older persons, including the adoption of the Active Ageing Strategy. It commended Slovenia for the adoption of the second Action Plan for the Implementation of the Resolutions on Women, Peace and Security of the Security Council.
109. The Republic of Moldova appreciated steps taken to strengthen the institutional framework to combat human trafficking and increase resources for the protection of the victims. It welcomed the implementation of the Youth Guarantee Scheme facilitating the integration of young persons in labor market.

110. The Russian Federation welcomed the implementation of a national programme regarding the Roma and efforts to strengthen the institutional framework to combat trafficking in persons and to enhance its prevention.

111. Honduras welcomed the adoption of the Protection against Discrimination Act as well as the ratification of the Istanbul Convention of the Council of Europe.

112. Senegal commended Slovenia for strengthening its legal and institutional framework, including bringing its national human rights institution in line with the Paris Principles and for the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on a communications procedure.

113. Uzbekistan noted with appreciation the ratification of the international instruments on the rights of women and children and the efforts to improve the situation of national minorities and older persons.

114. Israel commended Slovenia for the establishment of the Advocate of the Principle of Equality, and the adoption of laws and policies, including the Civil Union Act, the Youth Guarantee Scheme, and the long-term Active Ageing Strategy.

115. The delegation of Slovenia noted that the Government drafted a new Housing Act to ensure public housing, including for members of vulnerable groups who hold permanent residency status to find effective solution for their housing problems.

116. Slovenia adopted comprehensive policies in response to challenges that ageing population faced and to protect the rights of older persons. The pensions had been increased to avoid poverty among old persons. Slovenia also amended the legislation regulating social benefits in order to improve financial situation of older persons who were at risk of poverty. The National Housing programme for 2015–2025 envisaged special measures to provide adequate housing for older persons that enabled the provision of a high quality care and social inclusion.
